Tramp Saves Ontario Train From Dynamiters

EXPLOSIVE IS FOUND BEFORE TRAIN COMES

Transient Frightens Criminals Away From C.N.R. Bridge at Oakville, Ontario

Carries Dynamite From Structure

Station Master Says Passenger Train Saved By Act of Jobless Man

Canadian Press

Toronto, Aug. 25.—Nineteen sticks of dynamite, equipped with detonators, were found beneath the Canadian National Railway bridge at Oakville, near here, early to-day. The dynamite was rigged to explode when a train crossed the contacts of the automatic signal system at that point. A tramp, sleeping beneath the bridge, gave the alarm after he had frightened two men away.

Police so far have found no trace of the men.

A passenger train, due to pass the point shortly after the explosive was found, would have closed the circuit and exploded the dynamite.

FEEL WITH DYNAMITE

After the tramp had run away, the station master, a foreman, gathered up the dynamite, which he found had been pushed into gravel between the ties, and ran with it to the railway station. There he tripped and fell in his excitement, scattering the sticks of explosive over the station platform. Fortunately, the dynamite did not explode, and he picked up the sticks again and placed them in a sack, then turned them over to the police.

According to W. P. Shipley, station master at Oakville, the dynamite was connected with the electric bond wire which connects the two rails. "As soon as an engine approached the bridge, this would have started to spark," he said.

SEARCH FOR CRIMINALS

The first train set to pass over the bridge after the dynamite was found, the train was a passenger express.

"There was sufficient dynamite in the bundle to have blown up a large part of the town of Oakville, and the hunt increased in intensity as news of the attempt spread."

Fireman Is Hurt At Blaze

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Aug. 25.—Pinned beneath the door of a burning dry kiln at Sixth Avenue and Laurel Street yesterday evening, H. McCarter, East Twenty-seventh Avenue, fireman at No. 4 fire hall, suffered "injuries to his back." He was removed to a hospital.

It was feared McCarter had suffered serious injuries, as he lay beneath the door for several minutes before he was noticed. Examination at the hospital revealed, however, that the injury was not critical.

The fire occurred in a dry kiln of the Joseph Chev Shingle Company limited. The damage was estimated at several hundred dollars.

Clyde Lee and John Bochkon Bound From Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, to Oslo, Norway, Aboard Monoplane

Canadian Press
Harbor Grace, Nfld., Aug. 25.—"Green Mountain Boy" was out over the ocean to-day, speeding east with Clyde Lee and John Bochkon in the van of this week's field of sixteen aspirants for transatlantic honors.

The plane, a monoplane hopped off from the Harbor Grace airport at 5:31 a.m. eastern standard time (2:31 this morning—Victoria time), scheduled to land at Kjeller Field, Oslo, after a flight of about thirty hours.

The plane carried 450 gallons of gasoline, calculated as enough fuel to keep it aloft for thirty-seven hours.

Lee and Bochkon had a good night's sleep, with a light west wind helping them along. When they reached the first 800 miles of their journey were excellent. They were threatened with rain and head winds for a while after that, but the forecast was clear on the other side.

Over SOUTHERN ENGLAND

Their 9,150-mile course lay over southern England and Cuxhaven, Germany. They believed they were starting out with good weather for flights such as a flight.

Lee and Bochkon had just come through one such flight when fog and darkness forced them down on the beach at Burgeo Tuesday evening. They completed the flight from Barre, Vermont, to Harbor Grace yesterday morning.

Refreshed by a good night's sleep, they appeared at the airport about 4:30 this morning. Both reported they had overhauled their big plane.

When the plane left here Lee, an Oshkosh, Wisconsin, youth, was piloting; Bochkon, of Brooklyn, N.Y., a native Norwegian, acting as co-pilot.

CLEMENCY FOR SPAIN GENERAL

Madrid Government Commutes Death Sentence Passed on Jose Sanjurjo

Thirty Years in Prison For Gen. Herranz; Twelve Years For Colonel

Associated Press
Madrid, Aug. 25.—The government to-night granted clemency to Gen. Jose Sanjurjo, commanding general of the Spanish army, who had been sentenced to death earlier in the day for leading the recent monarchist revolt against the republic.

DECISION APPLAUSED

Announcement of the government's action was made by Premier Azana at the conclusion of a long cabinet session. The premier was surrounded by a great crowd and there was tremendous applause when he said clemency had been granted.

Ministers who were present at the cabinet session said clemency meant the general's sentence had been commuted.

They also reported the cabinet had discussed discharging all officers of the army to effect a complete reorganization.

The group was the largest that remained following the rout of 15,000 miners when they attempted to enter Franklin County to picket mines operating under the new $5 daily basic wage scale.

MINE MADE IDLE

Peru, Aug. 25.—The union coal miners' war on the new $5 basic wage contract reached a new front to-day when a caravan of 2,500 miners surrounded a pit at Maric, five miles southwest of here, and forced the mine into idleness.

This was the first invasion of northern Illinois coal fields by the militant miners discontented with the wage agreement reached by union leaders and coal operators.

SESSION AT OTTAWA MAY START OCT. 6

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Aug. 25.—Parliament will probably open its forthcoming session the first week in October, possibly the third or October 6, according to reports in government circles to-day. That date is considerably earlier than was previously suggested. A definite decision will be made by the cabinet soon.

The expectation is that the session will be adjourned after effect has been given to the agreements entered into at the Imperial Economic Conference. This may not take more than two weeks. The adjournment will likely be the last week of January.

NO TRACE OF DR. WARNOCK

No further developments in the disappearance of Dr. David Warnock, former Deputy Minister of Agriculture, were reported by the Provincial Police to-day. There was no trace of him in the city and the police were satisfied he had been drowned while crossing from Vancouver on the night steamer early yesterday morning.

To-morrow, Lord Elibank and Hon. J. G. Coates, the New Zealand delegation to the Imperial Conference, will be guests of the council of the Board of Trade at luncheon at Hotel Vancouver.

Lord Elibank has had a long and distinguished career in public life in Great Britain. He has been administrator, soldier, parliamentarian and business man. He has had administrative experience as acting governor of the Windward Islands and as administrator of the Transvaal and served in important commissions there. He is a former member of Parliament for one of the divisions of Glasgow.

Winnipeg, Aug. 25.—The University of Manitoba's endowment trust fund, officially reported a short time ago to amount to more than $1,000,000, has been depleted to an extent where it now amounts to about $100,000, it was learned late to-day.

It is understood investigations have found thefts amounted to $340,000 of the loss, while the fund has been further depleted through investments that turned out badly.

Winnipeg, Aug. 25.—John A. Machray, K.C., prominent in religious and educational circles in western Canada, and chairman of the board of governors of the University of Manitoba, was placed under arrest here to-day and charged with theft of $47,451.37 of the university's funds.

The arrest of Mr. Machray followed the disclosure yesterday that the sum of "several hundred thousand dollars" had been found to exist in the endowment funds of the university. Investigation to determine the exact amount taken went forward to-day.

Irregularities were said to have been discovered in the books of the bursar's account. Besides being chairman of the board of governors, Mr. Machray was a lawyer.

Arrested at his home, Mr. Machray did not appear in court to answer the single charge of theft of $47,451.37 laid against him. His physician told Magistrate R. M. Noble Mr. Machray was "seriously ill" with ulcer of the stomach.

Canadian Press

Regina, Aug. 25.—Major David Campbell, K.C., of St. Boniface, died in a hospital here this morning after a lengthy illness. He was prominent in Manitoba as a lawyer.

Early in June Mr. Campbell left St. Boniface on a motor trip to Edmonton, and while visiting Manitou Lake, near Watrous, Sask., became ill. He returned to Regina, where his daughter, Mrs. W. G. Campbell, resides. His condition steadily grew worse and he was removed to the hospital.

David Campbell gained fame as an outstanding barrister and skilled arbitrator.

"I seldom feel any after-effects," he said, "except the time when I gave ten pints in six days. I was a little weak for a day or so but I'm fine again now."

Bill's arm has been punctured by the needle several times but the marks heal quickly. He wears a pad of cotton secured with adhesive tape for a day or so and then it is off.

"I have given both direct and indirect transfusions," he said. "In the case of an indirect transfusion the blood is taken through a rubber tube into a jar with a small hand pump which draws the blood from the arm. It is run directly from my arm to the patient. It usually takes from ten to fifteen minutes to complete the transfusion."

LAWS DOWN FOR REST

"I usually have a stimulant after the transfusion and he down for half an hour or so. Then I can go about ordinarily again. Sometimes I have a general feeling of nausea for a while but it passes off in a few hours. I feel a little tired the next day on one occasion."

APPLE RATES ARE ESTIMATED

Canadian Press
Vernon, B.C., Aug. 25.—E. J. Chambers, president of the Associated Growers, has returned from the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa satisfied with the preference which has been given to apples on the British market.

Mr. Chambers stated apple growers have, according to published reports, secured all they could reasonably have expected. There is some uncertainty as to just what the result will be, he said. It is now agreed, he says, the following is as near accurate as can be estimated:

On the basis of a box of apples landed in England at a cost of $2, the Canadian grower has an advantage of 12½ per cent, this being the difference between the cost of sterling in New York and the Montreal 28-cent pound box. In addition, the Canadian grower is protected by the duty, which the shipper in the United States has to pay in United States funds. The Canadian grower thus has a total advantage of 53¢.

said Lord Elibank on arrival in Vancouver.

"On the business men will now fall the main burden of carrying out the findings and policies evolved at Ottawa."

Lord Elibank, who is touring Canada to make the acquaintance of board of trade and chamber of commerce leaders, took the position that the recent conference was but a beginning and that the imperfections of its results are for the future to correct.

At the outset of the conference in Ottawa, Elibank said it had been hoped good work could be done by laying down broad principles, but the delegates soon found themselves grappling with a mass of details, which in turn led to bargaining.

"While this cannot be avoided, the negotiations were conducted in the best of spirit and of desire to lay the foundation for present and future economic co-operation."

Great schemes involving the pooling of interests had even been worked out without sacrificing their interest, he said. The Canadian lumber trade had not received all it hoped for it should be remembered that greater benefits might be obtained as time went on. Britain, in granting preferences, had thrown aside her traditional free trade policy and progress could be made possibly only at a slow pace if the new policy was to be made permanently effective.

Pilot Has Plane Ready For Second Atlantic Solo Flight

New York, Aug. 25.—Captain James A. Mollison, Scottish flier who last week made the first solo westward crossing of the Atlantic, may not get away on his return flight to England for two or three days, though he has tentatively set to-morrow for the take-off and his little "flying gasoline tank" is all set. Dr. James Kimball, expert of the New York Weather Bureau, to-day said stormy weather blocked the path and it probably would be two or three days before the conditions would clear up.

FARM STRIKERS ARE PUT OFF ROADS

FACTIONS RIOT IN GERMANY

Sheriff Says Sioux City, Iowa, Must Receive Produce; Highways Into Council Bluffs Cleared

Sioux City, Iowa, Aug. 25.—Sheriff John A. Davenport to-day declared war on pickets blocking highways in their efforts to enforce a farm strike.

Thirty-five pickets were jailed early to-day as a result of refusal to obey the sheriff's command to leave the highways.

The sheriff said the pickets had promised they would not tolerate any violence in their activities, but that they repeatedly had broken their word and, as a result, he had determined to prevent interference with traffic on the highways.

The marchers were charged with unlawful assembly, conviction of which entails a penalty of thirty days in jail or $100 fine.

AUTOS ABANDONED

Fleeting when the firing began, the invading strikers deserted approximately 30 of their automobiles and trucks at the scene of the onslaught. In the hurry to escape, cars were driven into ditches or plunged into cornfields along the highway where the strike line had been established.

Thirty-five autos were injured, varying degrees.

Street fighting continued spasmodically following the attempt of a group of Adolf Hitler's National Socialists to stage a demonstration when the rumor spread that the five condemned Hitler followers would be taken from the local jail to a penitentiary. During the election campaign.

The marchers were charged with unlawful assembly, conviction of which entails a penalty of thirty days in jail or $100 fine.

DECREES ISSUED

Meanwhile, Premier Lukashev of Upper Silesia issued two decrees intended to cope with the situation. One forbade transportation of political groups in big buses, and another prohibited political haranguing in the streets.

The penalty is a fine of 150 marks (about $60).

The five Nazi followers were convicted in a "speed court" of having murdered a Communist in the demonstration that marked the latest German election campaign.

Adolf Hitler led off in a powerful speech, insisting the conviction was a point of honor with the Nazis. The government thereupon issued a manifesto declaring its decision would be based on the laws of the Reich and that that decision would not be tolerated.

In Berlin the rising tide of Nazi power was indicated yesterday by a violently anti-Semitic editorial printed in a "speed court" of having murdered a Communist in the demonstration that marked the latest German election campaign.

The strikers, whose leaders had insisted the invasion would be peaceful, made no resistance. Bewildered by the din of gunfire and shouts, they escaped quickly as possible and fled back into Perry County. Later some of them made camps along the highway.

The main group of the routed marchers returned to Pincheyville, northwest of the scene of the defeat, and spent the night on the Perry County fairgrounds.

Some of the leaders said another attempt would be made to invade Franklin County, but state highway patrolmen who aided the retreating strikers in their flight had been dispersed. They said their forces had been dispersed, and that many of the marchers were returning to their homes in northern and central Illinois, which they had left for the invasion of Franklin County's rich coal fields.

SWOOP ON TRUCKS

A half mile west of a crossroads village about two miles over the Franklin County line, the deputy sheriff lined the highway. All were arrested. Shot and machine gunners who had been following the marchers were bandaged by the invaders. As the caravan crossed a railroad track, the deputies climbed aboard the first five cars, directing the drivers to a highway intersection and ordering them to turn about. Suddenly down the line a shot was fired. It was followed by another shot, and soon the sound was almost a barrage. The shots were fired into the air and ground and at automobile tires.

Flag-decked cars waved, then were faced about by their drivers as deputies climbed aboard with clubs, swinging them right and left. The marchers were scattered.

Sgt. Brownie Robinson said the miners' cars would be pursued over the county line and the miners might get them.

There were some women in the advance guard of the strike parade. None was reported hurt.

The deputy coroners of both Franklin and Perry counties said there were no deaths.

EXHIBITORS PLEASED

The popularity of the evening sessions of the fair has greatly pleased the exhibitors in the Manufacturers and Industries Building, where huge crowds yesterday slowed traffic past the various displays. Where souvenirs and samples were being distributed the throngs defied progress for minutes at a time. Similar success marked the stands where models were on view or manufacturing processes were being conducted.

In the Main Building the floral displays hold prime interest, closely followed by the four splendid district displays. Large numbers of visitors were in the building throughout yesterday evening. Exhibitors, dealers, and buyers are keeping their displays at peak efficiency, and many blossoms which were not fully opened earlier in the week are now at their best.

The boys and girls are very eager about the planes and will be greatly interested in what you have to tell them about planes," he said. "And I can guarantee that a lot of them will want to take a flight but I would suggest they see their mothers and fathers first and get permission."

FLIGHT RECORDS BY MRS. PUTNAM

She Lands Plane at Newark, N.J., 19 Hours 2 Minutes From Los Angeles.

Associated Press

Newark, N.J., Aug. 25.—After flying 2,500 miles across the United States without a stop, a new long-distance record for women fliers, Mrs. Amelia Earhart, 37, of Los Angeles, her speed, 102.51, R.E.T., this forenoon.

Mrs. Putnam, who recently made a solo crossing of the Atlantic, had left Los Angeles nineteen hours and seven minutes. This was one hour and twenty-eight minutes slower than the record west-to-east trans-United States flight by Capt. Frank Hawks.

Tired after her long journey, Mrs. Putnam was nearly mobbed by an enthusiastic crowd, whose anxiety had been increased by the fact she had been reported only once in her trip across the continent.

FLEW HIGH

"It was a beautiful trip," she said. "If I had had the weather, I had only to fly over the ocean. I have broken the record." (Her first attempt recently was halted at Columbus, Ohio, through engine trouble.

She explained why her plane had not been sighted often when she said she had flown mostly at a height of 10,000 feet. She followed the air-lines, "cutting the corners a bit," she said.

DISTANCE RECORD

In addition to making the first trans-United States flight by a woman, Mrs. Earhart also won the distance flight record for women, which she barely missed taking from Ruth Nichols in Invicta, 100-miles-per-hour chassis.

U.S. Senator Says Veregin Knew Resignation Would Not Be Accepted

Canadian Press

London, Aug. 25.—In the presence of Cardinal Bourne, acting as Papal legate to the foreign bishops and others, the rebuilt Breakfast Abbey was consecrated two days after twenty-five years of steady labor by monks.

This was the first consecration of its kind in England since the Reformation, 400 years ago.

Among the monks stood Brother

Paul-Lasce Bourne. Expelled from

Burgundy with many others, he emigrated to that quiet corner of England and soon laid a few pounds ster-ling.

While gardening forty-eight years ago he discovered the foundations of the earliest abbey. It had been intended to build only a small

Gothic church, but the discovery of the ancient ruins impelled the monks to restore the abbey to its full glory of the twelfth century.

Never before had any monks been engaged in the building of this great monastic centre, which now includes a church 240 feet long, sixty-two feet wide and forty-nine feet high.

The statement that the Doukhobors are in serious financial straits is utterly absurd," said Senator Hackney.

"I have personally appraised and inventoried most of their properties, which, even under present depressed values, are worth several million dollars. They owe less than $500,000.

True, they may be pressed for ready cash just at this moment preceding the harvest, but their whole fruit

AN IMPARTIAL VIEW

WHILE OTTAWA ACHIEVED little, it may have started something." This is how The Business Week of New York heads a carefully-worded impartial review of the recent imperial conference. It does not think superlatives are necessary to describe the results: "they were used months ago by the protectionists in Great Britain when trying to win their constituents over to a tariff." There were lavish promises, then, of course, of all that might be bargained out of the empire in the way of trade concessions.

The journal we quote, however, concedes that the conference was not a failure, that even if it did not bring about a great "all-around-the-empire" agreement to level tariffs on family products, it "succeeded in convincing the members that they are not fitted economically to try to do business at all exclusively with each other." Then we read further:

Canada is too much tied up with its nearest neighbor, the United States, to give Britain all she wants for her manufacturers. Britain is doing too great a volume of selling to the Soviets, the Danes, the Argentines to exclude their products. Australia is aware of other markets than London. So are Cape Town and Auckland.

It succeeded in making every delegation stop and rationalize its own position at home before insisting on impossible trade concessions. It succeeded in arriving at several bilateral trade agreements which will suffice to extend them.

We are told that "Americans are not especially perturbed over the volume of business they are likely to lose as a result of the Ottawa parley. Even if it shall run to $75,000,000, they consider they are well able to stand the loss if it means the return of activity for any of the dominions, for each has been a good market for American products when times were more prosperous." What is interesting the people in the neighboring republic, however, is the interpretation of "domestic" or "empire content" of various exports if they are to enjoy preference in empire markets. In the last few years more than 1,000 branch plants have been established in this country. But it is pointed out, for instance, that in the event of the empire content committee deciding that there shall be a fixed quota of, say, seventy-five per cent labor and material to be supplied from empire countries, many of these branch establishments would have to leave Canada. As the heading of its review nevertheless implies, "what has come out of Ottawa is so far very small," but "if it paves the way for further bargaining within the empire, on the foundation which has been laid, its influence may be considerable."

The article concludes on this important note: "Now that it is over, each member is free to bargain with old and tested customers for new agreements. Here is hope. It may start the way for general tariff revision. That was one of the promises of Ottawa." It can be said again that until the world brings down its tariffs, the corner around which prosperity is supposed to be will remain as elusive as ever.

A PAINFUL DILEMMA

A FEW DAYS AGO THE VANCOUVER Sun sharply took The Vancouver Province to task for an attack upon Mr. Patullo because he proposed a general election. The Province's article fairly seethed with wrath over the opposition leader's proposal and seized the occasion to labor its pet idea of a coalition government; in fact, it was quite plain that The Province really was more irritated at Mr. Patullo because he had not aligned himself behind its demand for a coalition government than because he demanded an election. The Sun's criticism of its neighbor was equally trenchant.

While The Vancouver Sun obviously felt that the strictures of The Province against the Liberal leader were provocative, it might have remembered that The Province is basically Conservative at all times and violently so at election time and that it would sorely dislike to see the Liberals in office. It also dislikes to champion a losing cause; it naturally likes to carry the flag of the big battalions. That is merely a little bit of human nature.

Now the Tolmie government is Conservative; but it is a losing proposition, and knows it. The Province knows this also. It knows also that in a party election the Liberals would win. Its problem therefore, can be stated simply enough. It is this: How can it remain pro-Conservative and anti-Liberal and still be on the winning side when it is convinced that the Tolmie government is the losing side? And how can it do all of these things at once?

Our contemporary feels that it has found a neat way out of this impasse in the form of a coalition, with Dr. Tolmie, whom it helped to boom into the party leadership six years ago, out of the picture, and our strictly non-partisan friend, Mr. W. J. Bowser, whom it helped to boost out of the leadership at that time, conspicuously in this pretty landscape. Such a coalition, it feels, would be more popular than the Tolmie government, and under such auspices would be necessarily conservative—spelled with a small "c"—to conform to its fundamental party creed. Until this arrangement can be consummated, of course, a general election—especially now—must remain hopelessly taboo, for it would complicate our contemporary's problem in an agonizing degree.

But it is much simpler to state the problem than to work it out. Any decision for a coalition government would have to be made by Premier Tolmie—not by The Province, which appears to have no confidence in Tolmie decisions as a general rule, although it would hold up both hands for this one, provided he resigned in favor of the gentleman The Province seems to want, and not Mr. Patullo. The latter proceeding, of course, would upset the whole applecart again.

Being opposed to the Tolmie government, although ready to give credit to it whenever it feels such credit is due, irrespective of prospects of winning or losing. The Times is not in the confidence of its leader, but it sees no indication that he shares The Province's poor opinion of his administration or its lately-developed admiration for Mr. Bowser. In one respect he appears to be in perfect accord with his quondam newspaper supporter, and that is on the undesirability of a general election, although there is a wide gap between the reasons upon which that agreement is based.

The Vancouver Province's problem, however, is not altogether peculiar to itself. There are a lot of strong Tory partisans who are not satisfied with the Tolmie government for various reasons, but who hate the idea of putting a Liberal administration back in office after voting against it only four years ago. A coalition government would be easy on their party conscience, especially if it were headed by one of their own political faith.

Incidentally, there is nothing unreasonable in Mr. Patullo's proposal of a general election, as far as the public interest is concerned. The Tolmie government has been in office four years, and if it is as inadequate as The Vancouver Province says it is, it is time for an appeal to the electorate—which by the way, might not be enthusiastic over a coalition made in Vancouver. Besides, this seems to be a banner year for elections everywhere.

SNOW AT 9,000 FEET

THOSE AVIATORS WHO MAKE DAILY high-altitude flights to get the dope on the weather seem to have some odd experiences now and then. Ralph Wenzinger, who makes such flights for the Weather Bureau at Cleveland, had one of them not long ago. He went to an altitude of 9,000 feet on a hot summer day—and ran into the heaviest snow-storm he had seen in more than a year!

On the ground everything was summery, and not a flake got down to where earthbound mortals could see it. Wenzinger, a mile and a half off the ground, was fighting a January blizzard; and he had to go on up to 16,000 feet before he could get out into summer weather again.

The moral of all of this seems to be that if you have an airplane you need not worry about hot weather. You can find your own snow just by going up far enough. Now is your chance, Victorians!

THAT ORIENTAL MARKET

WHEN DR. QUO TAI CHI, CHINA'S new Ambassador to Great Britain, passed through Montreal recently he told an interviewer that Canadian-manufactured goods "are well liked in China," that he was sure there ought to be a trade treaty between his country and this Dominion. "I believe," he said; "that commerce between China and Canada could be much increased," that "manufactured goods are what we require."

Dr. Quo does not think this country can increase her sales of wheat to China for some time to come unless it be in northern China where the people eat and need what he calls "strong" food. But on the point of manufactured products he was emphatic—China wants these things and would like to buy them from Canada because "our government is very friendly to yours." In return for such purchases as China would like to increase, Dr. Quo suggests that Canada take more tea, silks, soya bean oil, and the soya bean itself.

Here is a suggestion for our Canadian manufacturers. In the Orient, as Hon. Herbert Marler pointed out recently, approximately 550,000,000 people are ready to be supplied with commodities they do not produce themselves. What is Canada doing about it? Apart from our lumber operators, very little interest seems to have been shown in this important potential market.

Canada has two trade commissioners in the Orient. If the government now in office at Ottawa really wanted to increase the trade of the country—not by means which run contrary to fundamental economic laws—it would plaster the Orient at comparatively insignificant expense with all the Oriental mind could absorb about Canada's equipment for supplying the Oriental peoples with everything they are ready to buy, or might be induced to buy, if proper salesmen were employed.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

CANADA'S FUTURE

The Yorkshire Post

Montreal and its suburbs claim a population of about a million. Very soon Montreal must become "the second city of the empire"—a title now claimed by Calcutta. The population of Canada, which is already ten million, is increasing rapidly. Canada stands where the United States stood sixty years ago. Nothing, it seems, can prevent her from becoming a first-class power before many years.

A BANK CENTENARY

The Toronto Star

One of the ten chartered banks which now serve the Dominion has been celebrating its centenary—the Bank of Nova Scotia, which was chartered in 1832. It is a remarkable fact that only one of these ten is a product of the present century, and even that one (Bank of Canada) is the stepchild of an Old Country bank which dates back to 1866. All our other more recent banks have been merged in the long-established institutions and to-day the list is as follows:

Bank of Montreal, chartered 1822
Bank of Nova Scotia 1832
Bank of Toronto 1855
Banque de Province (under name Jacques Cartier) 1862
Bank of Commerce 1867
Royal (as Merchants of Halifax) 1869
Dominion Bank 1871
Banque Canadienne Nationale (as Bank of Hochelaga) 1874
Imperial Bank 1875
Barclays Bank of Canada 1929

In comparison with the ten banks of to-day, there were, at Confederation, twenty-eight; nine of them in the Maritimes. All ten which now serve Canada are managed from either Toronto or Montreal. Only one of them is of more recent origin than 1875. One, the Bank of Montreal, really dates back to 1817, but it was at that time a private institution. There has been only one bank failure in sixteen years.

A THOUGHT

And I gave my heart to know wisdom, and to know madness and folly: I perceived that this also is a vexation of spirit—Ecclesiastes 1:17.

Seize wisdom ere 'tis torment to be wise; this is, seize wisdom ere she seizes thee.—Young.

Loose Ends

This column is supposed to cheer you up—but I don't believe it will somehow—since cheer is reckoned to-day on such a curious basis—and just sitting in the sun and blinking is regarded with contempt by successful people.

By H. B. W.

FOR THE majority of us there is no reason for depression at all, except in the minor matter of business. For the majority of us in this country the depression of business has removed the least important part of our happiness, if you must reckon things on a purely mathematical and economic basis, the majority of us actually are still better off than we were in 1922, even if we are poor beside the prosperity of 1928 and 1929. A minority, unhappily, is much worse off than 1922 or any other year, but the fixed habit of unhappiness and pessimism which seems to have descended upon the majority won't help these unfortunates. It is my theory that if the majority stopped worrying about themselves for a while they would have more time to do something for their poor neighbors. The fashionable outlook of the moment, the feeling that we are at the end of everything instead of the beginning, dams up the flow of charity and makes the problem just that much worse.

OF COURSE, I know what you are saying if you happen to be a civil servant, for instance, whose salary has been cut 12 per cent and may be cut again, or a business man whose business has been cut twice that amount or more. You will say unkind things about me. Yet I still persist that the most of us, the majority whom you never hear about, are extraordinarily well off compared with the average over the whole world including, by the way, the richest of the world's nations nearby, where millions are close to starvation and shootings have not been infrequent. But you never hear much about us. You only hear about those who are broke.

For the second time the steamer Princess Royal lost one of her propeller blades while on a recent trip. Just before reaching Queen Charlotte Sound one of the blades broke away at the casting in the exactly same position in the same manner as the blade which was lost on her previous trip.

The scheme for opening up E. and N. lands for settlement is being developed, according to R. Marpole, vice-president of the road.

shore, to my knowledge has never done anything but just live for the last ten years. The tide of the boom and the depression have swept by and never moved him an inch out of his ordinary routine. He raises his chickens and sells a few eggs and cuts a little wood and catches some fish now and then, and tinkers with his boat and builds a house for somebody occasionally and, at this time of year, sits in the sun for hours at a stretch, just blinking and enjoying himself. Every day as the successful man goes by it distresses him to think that in a world where there is so much opportunity for trouble and worry, this fellow chooses instead to sit blinking in the sun. It destroys the successful man's faith in the working classes.

"Lots of sisters out there, Kid," he purred again. "Such pretty girls!"

Dick Harkins was not the man's real name, Bud knew. Once long ago Buck had taken a "ride" for some warmer higher up and his title had descended to his shoulders. The habit also had descended. A youth known as Slim Dugan was at this instant in Sing Sing serving a sentence for Buck.

Bud rose and went to the opening of the door.

"Look, Buck," he said as the music suddenly stopped. "There's my sister, the girl in green. Red-headed. You can't miss her. She's gone to that table just beyond that post. There."

The pride in Buck's voice brought the other to his side. Buck Harkins was seated in a pretty girl. He applied his eyes diligently and drew in his breath with a low whistle.

"Whew! Classy dame. Just the kind of get-up we like to see in this place. They dress up the act, Kid."

Bud turned a long, crafty smile on Bud, his lids lowering slightly.

The perturbation mingling with pride in Bud's face was real.

"Suppose she did see you?" Buck waddled back to his seat and began tapping the desk speculatively. "What could happen? The worst she could do was ask why you were spending more time in a sucker's joint."

"She saw me come in here," Bud told him.

"Tell her you came to complain about your bill. Plenty do!" Harkins smiled faintly. The telephone from his pocket scowled at it and was about to speak when the telephone chimed again.

Bud answered. "Yeah," he grunted, nodding his head as though the gesture were visible across the wire. "Yeah . . . What's that? . . . I don't mean maybe; I mean yes, positively."

"Not for twenty minutes?"

Almost immediately Bud remembered.

CHAPTER VIII

"It's Lottie!" Steve exclaimed, directing Mona's gaze across the room.

It was indeed Lottie. She had not seen her friends, apparently, for she was not looking at them. Lottie stood at a wet table on a platform slightly raised above the rest of the floor so that she could watch the floor show (when it began) over the heads of the other diners. Just now she was eating busily and neglecting her companion quite mercilessly.

Her escort was a bored looking youth who was dressed in a manner that was neither good nor bad, but his figures were sure. Bud, watching, knew the inadvisability of trying to put anything over on such a power.

At last the line of figures seemed to satisfy. Bud folded it, jerked open a small drawer before him and laid the case-carefully inside. Then he wiped his hands as though a difficult job had been completed and pressed a button at the side of his desk.

A waiter appeared promptly.

"Ginger ale," Bud said. He looked at Bud. "Have some, Kid? No. Make it one, Jake. Or wait! Make it two—one glass."

"Now kid," Bud went on impressively. "You ain't drinking when you string along with this outfit, see? We ain't drinkers and we ain't killers." Perhaps he thought of Blond Annie for he added hastily.

"Not you 'n' me, anyway."

"And I ain't a chauffeur, Bud. I don't want to handle any car."

"S'pose that man patted Bud's arm almost smothering. "You ain't going to handle a car. You're all right, Kid. If you do what you tell you, all right. Even if they get you, they can't hang anything on you. Trust me. Now here—" he drew his chair closer.

"You're all wet on that stuff about your sister, Kid. You say she's here. Suppose she did see you—what of it? Tell her—what do you want to tell her, Kid?"

"She thinks I've got a job in Fordham."

"Tell her the boss sent you down with a note for me." Bud considered briefly. "Take $20 home to your mother every day. That's what she makes. You're a steady guy good to your family. You sleep there, eat there and stick around when we don't want you. Kid your sister along."

"I borrowed a quarter from her today," Bud said grinning.

"Fine! Pay her back Saturday. Make them think you are on the up and up. A boy's sister is a good friend if he gets in with a family. That's goes down deep with a jury."

"Yes? Mona didn't tell me."

Foolish Girls Who Plan To Make Up For Parents' Strictness When They Leave Home—Shall a Girl Tell How Old She Is?—Marriage As Escape From Work

DEAR MISS DIX—We are two lively girls who want to get a kick out of life. We have chances to go places and do things, but our parents are very strict and won't let us go to dances or stay out late at any entertainments. We intend to go to a business college in a city and make up for what we have missed then, for we will be free. Does it do our parents any good to be strict now, for we will soon be doing as we please in spite of them?

SWEET SEVENTEEN.

Answer: No. It doesn't do any good for parents to be too strict nor does it do girls any good to have too much liberty, and the pity of the thing is that parents and children find it so hard to strike the happy medium in which youth can have its fun and age guiding and protecting it.

Both sides are right from their respective points of view. The parents know so well the dangers and temptations that lie along the broad highway that their children are so eager to follow. They have seen so many drunken boys and girls coming home from wild parties late at night. They have heard such lurid tales of petting parties and parked automobiles. They have known so many girls' reputations torn to tatters by gossiping tongues that they are determined to keep their own little ewe lambs safe in the home fold and locked up at night behind their own doors.

So they deny the girls every pleasure that belongs to their time of life. They are kept virtual prisoners at home. They are never allowed to go to a dance or a party. No boy is permitted to cross their threshold and father and mother sit back complacently sure that they have done their duty and no matter what other lax parents let their children do that they have kept their daughters safe.

But they haven't. In reality they have increased the danger that besets every modern girl. For by forbidding every pleasure to their daughters and denying them every amusement and association with the opposite sex, they have given a false and fictitious value to these pleasures and made the girls so avid for them that they will have them at any price. Every woman from Mother Eve down has hungered for forbidden fruit and eaten her apple; no matter if she knew beforehand the price she had to pay for it.

Tell a girl that the world is a wicked place and that she must keep out of it and you simply make her mad to see how bad it is. Refuse to let a girl bring her boy friends home and she meets them in corner drug stores. Never let her go to a party and she lies about going to stay all night with a girl chum and goes God knows where with God knows whom.

Parents might just as well face these facts honestly and realize that the only way they can protect their daughters is by letting them have all the innocent pleasures that they can and by teaching them to walk warily among the temptations that lie along their pathway. Let them go to plenty of nice parties where there is a lot of fun and liveliness and they will not be mad for the whoopee ones. Let them dance their fill at decent places and they will not be doing the rhumba in speakeasies. If they must drink and smoke, at least teach them how to do it in moderation and make them realize how disgusting a girl is who gets tight.

Above all, make their boy friends welcome and thus get a chance to weed out the undesirable ones and help them choose for their associates the kind of lads that you would not mind their marrying.

And parents may well realize this: That they cannot always hold their girl children by the hands or keep them locked at home twiddling their thumbs. Very soon these little daughters are grown up and out in the world and then if they have always been repressed at home they break the bounds. They mistake liberty for license. They go crazy with their freedom. In the exuberance of their spirits, let loose for the first time, they do things that they spend the balance of their lives regretting.

Ignorance is never ignorance. Inexperience does not insure safety. And so the stern parents who try hardest to protect their children really do most to throw them to the wolves.

For there are many other girls besides these two poor, silly seventeen-year-olds who are planning to make up for lost time and lost pleasures as soon as they get out from under father's and mother's thumbs.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am four years older than the man I am going to marry. He does not know it. Shall I tell him?

PERPLEXED.

Answer: A woman's age is a secret between herself and her mirror and it is nobody else's business, not even her fiance's, and she is perfectly justified in telling him a tarrydiddle or refusing to answer if he asks her the direct question.

I once heard a very charming elderly beau get out of this situation in a particularly diplomatic way. An inquisitive woman asked him bluntly how old he was, to which he responded: "If you will forgive me for not telling you, I will forgive you for asking the question."

But, personally, why do you mind? What are four years either way in a lifetime? Age is not a mere matter of chronology. There are plenty of people at seventy who are really younger than others at seventeen, and if a woman looks and acts and has the spirit of twenty-five or thirty or thirty-five, that is how old she is no matter what her birth certificate may say to the contrary.

There are so many things so much more important in marriage than age that I am constantly amazed that people put such stress upon it. There is congeniality of taste, of habits. There is personality. There is sweetness of disposition. There is mutual understanding. There is kindness and helpfulness, a thousand things that matter so much more than whether a woman is four years younger or four years older than a man.

So tell your sweetheart that it is none of his business how old you are and that so far as he is concerned you are just exactly the right age for him. And that you are going to stay that age as long as you live.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am sixteen years old and I don't want to work or help my mother with the housework. What shall I do? I am thinking of running away and getting married.

M.G.

Well, if you don't want to work, I would certainly advise you to refrain from getting married. Believe me, that is no soft snap where a girl sits down on a silk cushion and does nothing but feed upon strawberries, sugar and cream. For most women, marriage means a fourteen-hour-a-day job with no holidays and layoffs. Look around among the married women you know and see how many of them lead idle and luxurious lives.

But, my dear child, work isn't a curse. It is our greatest blessing. It is what puts interest and pep in existence and justifies our having lived. If you don't want to help your mother get a good job into which you can put your heart and your back and you will find happiness in it.

DOROTHY DIX.

Government Agencies Of British Columbia

Important Offices Which Are Charged With Many Duties and Much Responsibility

They Should Be Reorganized on the Basis of Strict Administrative Need

By Lieut.-Col. R. Ross Napier

The work of the government agencies of British Columbia, although the most important branch of the provincial government administrative service, is probably the least understood by the public, and is certainly the least appreciated. Those who come in contact with an agency, in all likelihood do so in only one sphere of its activities, and remain completely ignorant of its numerous other functions. Even in a local center an agency exists, it is often spoken of as the "Court House" from a mistaken impression that the various courts are the main, or even sole, function of government for which the building is intended.

In Vancouver, notwithstanding the important functions which it performs, it is completely blotted out in the mind of the ordinary citizen by the "Court House," and, in Victoria, the Headquarters of administration, there is, of course, no agency.

Yet the government agency system (not necessarily its administration) is the most important and most important branch of the government service, not only because of its revenue producing function, but also because, by its means, the multifarious duties of public administration, and representation of all departments of the government, are carried out in a territory of over 370,000 square miles.

The time and energy of the system may be ascribed to the fact that it was evolved by the practical administrative needs of the province, and is intrinsically interwoven with its progress and development.

When widely isolated communities were first formed in British Columbia through the discoveries, a first and most demand was for the preservation of law and order. To this end outstanding men in each community were selected to act as magistrates. Frequently the magistrate was the only one who was most vehemently demanding that his own, and, without fail, one who becomes a minister immediately discovers the need of a government agency in his constituency, if there is not one there already. If, in addition, he can not get the erection of a building for the purpose, and he generally does) he feels that the agency is safely anchored, and that no matter how much it costs the province, or how little the administrative need of the expenditure, his personal dignity and the importance of his district have been upheld. The agency seems to be most useful in the prosecution of political crimes against the purse and property of the province, but the service itself, both in salaries and necessary expenditures, and notwithstanding its primary importance, has been pared and scraped to the very bone.

One important agency housed in a building, but only a necessary building, erected at enormous cost, cannot boast of owning a single chair or desk in the agency offices, while one of the largest agencies, handling hundreds of thousands of documents, does not own a single modern filing cabinet. Yet costly buildings, of importance, in themselves, and far exceeding any possible requirements, have been erected for political reasons, where there was no administrative need, while, in other places having heavy administrative requirements, nothing has been done, although for years the rentals paid for accommodation outside the government building would have far exceeded the interest on the capitalization of any necessary structure.

At time went on, the collection of land and other taxes was added to the duties of the government, and together with the office of registrar of the County Court and the Supreme Court, as and when established in the district. In some cases the government agent was also appointed assessor of land under the Taxation Act, until in comparatively recent years, it could be brought home to the administering department that it was then even a government agent could not attend to the multifarious duties of his office at the same time cover a vast territory doing assessment work. Even to-day, the department is only partly convinced of the indivisibility of its officials, and one or two such appointments still exist.

The government agent was recognized as the official representative of the government in his district, and all official matters passed through his hands. Even the road work in his district was carried out—often with great difficulty—under his supervision. This was not permitted to continue, however, as the agency districts conformed more to the political needs of the country than to political divisions. Local politicians, for reasons readily surmised, demanded that allocations for expenditure on public works be made by electoral districts, a vicious system which was brought into being, and still persists.

As time went on, the government agent, as given, other official positions, such as registrar of voters, registrar of vital statistics, registrar under the Marriage Act, stipendiary magistrate, Judge of the Small Debt Court, Juvenile Court Judge, official receiver in bankruptcy, official administrator and many others.

In addition, the government agent has the care of all those who are poor and sick in his district, and who have the duty thrust upon him of handling applications for old age pensions. Many of these entail voluminous correspondence, extending over many months and, even years. Further, all emergencies of whatever nature, be it fire, flood or pestilence, are immediately thrust upon the government agent to be dealt with. At the present time, he is charged with carrying out relief work, in addition to his ordinary duties, and the recent Doukhobor refugees have been handled in his magisterial capacity by the government agent at Nelson.

Today, there are over twenty official positions which may be held by a government agent. As a rule, he holds from twelve to seventeen, which, while reasonable assistance, can only be carried out by a qualified official, thus effecting a real saving in economy, as against the political "heister's" dream of a paid official for each position. It must be remembered, however, that the qualified official must be intimately acquainted with the intricacies and administration of the many acts governing taxation, mining, land, water, civil and criminal courts, court registries and other matters too numerous to mention, a knowledge which can only be acquired by years of practical experience and training.

Naturally, trained employees are at a premium, but, unfortunately, the administering department is not always frown on any who are at systematic training, and vacancies are filled by appointment, completely untrained, and, naturally, unsuitable, being thrust, at the behest of local politicians, into staffs of agencies, very often over the heads of, and at higher salaries than, employees of years of training and experience. Further, seems to indicate that the work required of an agency and a constant nightmare of the staff lies in the fact that, of the eleven government departments at Victoria, there are seven, and four distinct branches of an eighth, which may make urgent direct demands for its services at one and the same time. When it is considered that, throughout the year, there are times when one of a statutory nature necessitates the agency staffs working far into the night for protracted periods, and that the demands of the courts are often unexpected and uncontrolled, it may readily be stated that when Gilbert made his famous statement regarding the policies of the British Columbia government agent.

Some years ago one department had an act changed, which made its own demand for intensive statutory work at the agencies fall at the same time that the staffs were already engaged in work due to hectic work in another department. When the agencies (who had not been consulted or advised) discovered what was going to happen, it was too late. The work was "statutory" and must be done. What it cost the province that year in extra, and of course untrained, help, and how much it cost the government to remain a mystery, but most government agents barely escaped a trip to Esquimalt. But year after year, despite totally unnecessary difficulties "monkey-wrenched" inserted in the local administrative works, and government agents, the agencies have garnered the revenue from the furthest reaches of the province, and have sent it in millions to Victoria, to be expended in education, public works and, unkind critics say, in some ways less justifiable. At the same time, the laws of the province and the country have been administered so that the people of the larger centres scarcely hear a hum of the vast administrative machine.

There are forty-two government agencies and sub-agencies throughout the province. More than is necessary. Yet, but, on the other hand, the representative, who most vehemently demands economy, demand it in every constituency but their own, and, without fail, one who becomes a minister immediately discovers the need of a government agency in his constituency, if there is not one there already. If, in addition, he can not get the erection of a building for the purpose, and he generally does) he feels that the agency is safely anchored, and that no matter how much it costs the province, or how little the administrative need of the expenditure, his personal dignity and the importance of his district have been upheld. The agency seems to be most useful in the prosecution of political crimes against the purse and property of the province, but the service itself, both in salaries and necessary expenditures, and notwithstanding its primary importance, has been pared and scraped to the very bone.

One important agency housed in a building, but only a necessary building, erected at enormous cost, cannot boast of owning a single chair or desk in the agency offices, while one of the largest agencies, handling hundreds of thousands of documents, does not own a single modern filing cabinet. Yet costly buildings, of importance, in themselves, and far exceeding any possible requirements, have been erected for political reasons, where there was no administrative need, while, in other places having heavy administrative requirements, nothing has been done, although for years the rentals paid for accommodation outside the government building would have far exceeded the interest on the capitalization of any necessary structure.

Unfortunately for the purse of the province, lack of co-ordination of departments at Victoria, and consequent departmental jealousy, together with political maladministration, have permitted the creation of departmental buildings apart from the original economical agency system, which called for one government staff in a district, and the creation of departmental buildings, with round arms and reversible loose cushion seat. Was formerly priced at $29.75. This handsome and comfortable Chair is now available at the sale of $19.75.

LENGTHENING OF DAYS IS STUDIED

Canadian Press

Toronto, Aug. 25—Daylight saving legislation will be unnecessary in a few billion years, for days, of their own accord, are getting longer and longer.

The mystery of the lengthening day was explained to the Canadian Club by Sir Frank Dyson, British Astronomer Royal and director of the Greenwich Observatory.

"The moon is pulling at the tides and the earth is turning under this solar friction," he said. "It would work out to the extraordinary minute measurement of one one-hundredth of a second a day every century."

Minute as this figure was, it had been twice verified recently by scientists he said, and so there can be no doubt it is the friction of the tides which is making this very minute lengthening of our day."

TO CONSIDER
NEW TEACHERSSchool Board Expected to Withhold Appointments
Until After Term StartsNo appointments of teachers to the public schools will be made by the Victoria School Board until after the start of the fall term. It was learned this morning.The August meeting of the board will be held next Monday afternoon, but no important business outside of routine accounts and expenditures is on the agenda.In line with the general economy policy adopted by the board at the first of the year, the board is expected to withhold any appointments until they became absolutely necessary. At the start of each term there are usually a few replacements to be made, but the trustees will wait to see if the attitudes justify them.It is likely a meeting will be held the second week of September to discuss the matter.

Strong Crews Picked For J.B.A.A. Autumn Regatta

Local Oarsmen To Seek Club Titles Here On Labor Day

Men Will Go After Prized Trophies in Final Major Meet of Year; Races to Start at 2:30 o'Clock; Several Strong N.P.A.A.O. Competitors Will Compete; Training Consistently For Events

In quest of club championships and traditional trophies up for competition annually, husky oarsmen of the James Bay Athletic Association will drive their boats over the course at the Gorge on Labor Day in a programme of events which should attract great crowds to the club premises. The event will be the last major meet of the Victoria rowing season. Virtually all the best men in the city will be competing for the cups, many of which have histories much older than the men who will be competing for them.

In the opening race at 2:30 o'clock, Bill Stanch, Gordie Scott and Mac Billingsley will compete for the MacLamaine Cup, emblematic of the club title in the junior singles division.

EXPECT GOOD RACE

Bill Stanch and Mac Billingsley are the two senior and Mac Billingsley, Gordie Scott and Fred Parker in the junior doubles for the J.B.A.A. Challenge Cup, while in the senior pair race, Bill Dillabough and Arnold Main should put up a great battle against Hugh Francis and Bob Wratten. Another J.B.A.A. Challenge Cup will also be up for the latter event.

Ken Bonner will look a small four, composed by Alex Rawlins, E. Wood, and Dick Sewell, with Vic Rawlins as cox, against Tom Kelway's crew of C. Billingsley, Max Billingsley and Bill Stanch, in the novice fours for The Times Cup.

No crews have yet been picked for the junior fours, but two good boats will be filled by the time the event rolls around.

In the senior crew event Chris Ulster will stroke the boat he drove to victory in the novice fours in the N.P.A.A.O. regatta against a new combination with Brian Tobin as stroke. Jack Dunn three, Noel Jones two and J. W. Dunn bow, Usher's crew will include Bill Lemm, Jim Temple and W. Clarke.

The latter quartette will be up against extremely tough opposition in Tobin's crew, two members of which rowed on the club's Big Four.

The day will be a thoroughly hot one, despite a chance and prior presentation ceremony in the Shrine Auditorium in the evening.

With their events drawing close the contestants in the different races are training faithfully for the regatta, and should be in the pink of condition when they put their backs into it on Labor Day.

Don Moe Defeated By Veteran Evans

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 25. — Charles "Chick" Evans, Chicago's famous veteran, turned back the challenge of youth in the western golf championship yesterday, only to be beaten off the big stage by skill and experience of the young player.

Evans, displayed his old-time form in the morning, to dethrone the defending king of the western amateurs, Don Moe, Portland, Ore., 1 up, but in the afternoon he hooked up with forty-three-year-old Arthur Bartlett, of Ottawa, Ill., and fell 2 down.

Evans' last night, to play in the race for a crown he has worn eight times, was the high spot of the day, which saw stars from Iowa, California, Wisconsin and Texas sweep to victory in the upper bracket and four Illinois entries, dominate the lower salient.

Bobby Reith Wins His Third Title

Winnipeg, Aug. 25.—Young Bobby Reith to-day had all the major titles of Manitoba's golfers in his bag. The slender seventeen-year-old lad who gave the great Sandy Sommerville a real battle before he was eliminated from the Canadian amateur title hunt at Toronto two weeks ago, yesterday added the Winnipeg city and district championship to the Manitoba open

PLAY OPENS AT GANGES

Pacific Northwest Stars Participate in Annual Gulf Islands Tennis Event

Ganges, Aug. 25.—Opening matches were played here yesterday in the annual Gulf Islands tennis championships on the courts at Harbor House. A large number of the "big shots" of the tournament will not get into action until today.

All favorites came through as expected in yesterday's engagements. Mel Dranga, Seattle, seeded number one in the men's singles, and Ross Hocking and Tommy Forbes, both of Victoria, were not drawn in matches yesterday.
